LOST CONFEDERATE SPURS

GEN. DUDLEY TELLS OF SPURS LOST AT GETTYSBURG.

The Sequels to Battle Experiences that Happened Many Years Afterwards.

Gen. W. W. Dudley, who as Colonel commanded the 19th Indiana Regiment at the battle of Gettysburg, for this place has many associations that are dear to him, dear in that here he went down through the shadow of the Valley but returned as few men do, dear in that here he received many kindnesses which touched his heart, and the story of the experience of Gen. Dudley is but one of the many stories of the great battle, which help to illuminate it.

Gen. Dudley during a recent visit to the place had many memories awakened and it was most delightful to hear him travel over them. He went back to the days immediately preceding the battle, on the march to Gettysburg. The night before his regiment had reached the neighborhood of Greenmount. The same evening with a number of other soldiers he sat at a dinner of a lot of good things such as a soldier seldom gets, at the Riddlemose farm in that neighborhood. Afterwards there was a dance in the barn to the time of the fiddle in which the Riddlemose girls, flung the light fantastic with a number of soldier gallants. Merriment reigned.

Gen. Dudley met an old friend the same evening, Lt. Col. John B. Callis of the 7th Wisconsin. They were enjoying the good things to eat and while seated on a log snacking their lips over the feast, thoughts of the approaching fight intruded and Gen. Dudley remarked "Well John B. let's get a furlough to-morrow" an expression current among soldiers of being relieved from duty by being wounded, "and come back here and be fed back to life by these Dutch girls." His companion jovially responded "All right, you get it in the guts and I'll get it in the legs" and the two laughed over the prospect, little dreaming that the morrow would bring them the furlough but under reversed conditions.

Gen. Dudley was among the first of the First Corp on the field on the morning of the first day. He went with his regiment at once to the front. He saw General Reynolds killed, and about the same time his horse was shot from under him and he spent the rest of the day on foot.

Every reference of Gen. Dudley to that fight on the first day of the battle showed what the hell of war was. He saw Archer's brigade captured. He saw the Union troops literally mow down three different lines of Confederates as they advanced. The fighting at Gettysburg on the first day when the First Corp held in check ten times its number for six hours from 10 to four o'clock p. m. is one of the fiercest ever fought in the annals of the race, where 75 per cent of the men of regiments and companies were lost.

About the middle of the afternoon Gen. Dudley had the colors in his hand and leading his men forward. As near as can be located he was occupying the spot over which the 19th Ind. monument now stands. A Rebel away off to the side got his range and a bullet struck his leg, and he fell forward to the ground with the colors.

Shortly afterwards he was carried across the fields to Seminary ridge, where he lay on the ground for a short time. He was picked up by an ambulance coming to town shortly before the retreat began. The ambulance in which he lay got in the jam in the town and the boys of this regiment who had charge of him decided the time had come to abandon the ambulance wagon. Getting a stretcher ready Gen. Dudley was placed thereon and four of his men started with him to the rear. They turned into East Middle Street. They had gone but a short distance when they saw Johnnies coming into the street from the eastern end. Those who carried him hurried into the alley way, then existing where the engine house now stands, and reaching the compiler he was carried into the home of Henry J. Stable from the rear. As the four men brought him in they told Mrs. Stable they had a dead man and she directed them to place him on the lounge and the men then skipped to avoid capture.

Mrs. Stable soon found out that the dead man was very much alive, and Gen. Dudley laughs as he tells how Henry J. Stable insisted he should take some brandy he had and how his wife insisted that he eat the good things she had for him.

A most delightful digression to his story came at this point. He stated that he had a pair of spurs he prized most highly, and when he was wounded he had taken them from his boots and placed them in the breast of his jacket and that taking the spurs from their hiding place he gave them to Mrs. Stable with his sword, asking her to hide them so that they would be safe for him.

The spurs were unique, the wheels made of Mexican dollars and with a gold mounting and big silver buckle over the instep. They were a present from a Confederate soldier, Gen. Dudley captured at the Second Battle of Bull Run. He had come upon the officer, Cussons by name, with a few men and captured them. He shared his bunk with the officer, who he said was a handsome fellow and who gave him his word he would make no attempt to escape if paroled and lived up to his promise most faithfully. The intimacy of several days resulted in the gift of the spurs.

Gen. Dudley often wondered what had become of the officer who had given him the spurs and many years after the war was in Alabama and in conversation with Governor Oakes of that State was discussing the bravery of men in battle, times when men seemed oblivious to danger and after a number of experiences had been recalled Gov. Oakes told of a young officer at the bloody angle at Spotsylvania who mounted the breast works at the head of his men when hundreds of bullets whizzed all around him and when his men hung back he cried at them "Do you want to live forever?" Gov. Oakes gave the name of this officer as Cussons and Gen. Dudley responded that he believed he had captured that officer during the war. The address of the officer was given and Gen. Dudley discovered that he was the one who had given him the spurs.

At this point the compiler man interrupted to ask whether this same Cussons was not the head of the firm manufacturing calendars at Glen Allen, Va., from whom the compiler has been buying calendars for the last four years. Gen. Dudley answered why that's the very same man. Every patron of the compiler who has enjoyed our big figured calendars has been gazing at a Cussons calendar pad.

The Stable home fell into the hands of the Confederates during evening of July 1st and Gen. Dudley was discovered. He received treatment from a Confederate Surgeon. A Confederate officer took possession of the compiler office and at once had a small parole printed. Of the first of these paroles to be printed, one fresh from the press was brought by the officer, a Col. Smead to Gen. Dudley to sign, reading that he was paroled on his honor, not to take up arms against the Confederacy until he had been exchanged as a prisoner. Gen. Dudley was raised on the couch and given a pencil to sign his name, but added above his name "until I have recovered from wounds and rejoined my regiment" and this parole is one of the keepsakes the compiler cherishes. The Confederate Officer read what Gen. Dudley had added and laughed as he said "that's all right, you will be a dead man before that happens."

Gen. Dudley believing his condition would likely end fatally finally decided to give the spurs given him by Cussons to Colonel Smead. Getting them from Mrs. Stable he gave them to Col. Smead and asked him to return them to Cussons. Col. Smead promised to carry out Gen. Dudley's wishes, and when the friendship was reopened with Cussons one of the first things to be learned was that the spurs had never been returned and that Col. Smead upon the retreat had been killed at Williamsport and Gen. Dudley finishes this episode with the assertion that he would give a good deal to have those spurs again.

Gen. Dudley remained the greater part of his time at the Stable home on the lounge in dining room, the coolest place in the house. Mr. Stable had bought the property adjoining his home shortly before and the printing plant had been removed to that property and the room vacated was being converted into a parlor. The shavings were gathered up and Gen. Dudley carried into that room to have his leg operated on.

Realizing that his leg was badly shattered, Gen. Dudley advised that his leg be cut off above the foot. To secure help for Gen. Dudley Henry J. Stable left his home on an errand and this errand of mercy for Gen. Dudley was interpreted by Mr. Stable's enemies as some act of disloyalty and he was arrested, but word reached the surgeons at the Court House of Gen. Dudley's condition and his own surgeon happened to be at Court House and came to him. This surgeon was a very dear friend and desiring to save Gen. Dudley's leg, instead of amputating the leg removed 157 pieces of bone.

When the report became current on July 4th that before retreating Gen. Lee was going to shell the town this same friend decided to get Gen. Dudley out of harm's way and he was placed in an ambulance and started down the Baltimore pike, members of the Stable family accompanying him to the Union lines. The ambulance on its way passed through the ranks of the 19th Ind. and his men pressed around him to greet him, delighted to find him alive. He went as far as near Two Taverns when he begged them to leave him by road side, the road and ambulance was too rough. He was lifted to the ground and remained there over the night of the 4th. They were to return with an easier riding ambulance.

On the fifth a doctor found him and he was driving in a light spring wagon. He took Gen. Dudley on board and conveyed him to Littlestown. It was his intention to go to York but the wound beginning to bleed he was taken to the home of Col. Eph. Myers, where he remained 31 days.

It was found necessary to prevent gangrene to amputate the leg at Littlestown and it was cut off and buried in the yard of Col. Myers.

Gen. Dudley laughed as he said "they tell a story on me at Littlestown that I complained of the toes of the amputated foot hurting as though cramped and the leg was disintegrated and it was found that the toes had been pushed into the box in which they were buried and that after properly arranging them I experienced no further difficulty" and the General's eyes twinkled as he added "I don't know anything about the incident."

After leaving Littlestown Gen. Dudley had another amputation at a New Haven, Conn. hospital and laughed as he said his stump had not interfered with him doing as much work in a day as a man with two good legs would do.

The Gen. tells a sequel to Col. John

B. Callis story. Callis was wounded in the abdomen and carried to the O'Neal home beside the Stable home but the two friends in homes beside in Gettysburg never knew of the other until years afterwards, the one with his furlough of wound in his legs and the other in his guts.

Some years afterwards Gen. Dudley was seated in an Indianapolis hotel when a veteran entered on crutches. Assuming himself of the identity he waited until the stranger sat down. Then he took a seat along side of him. Gen. Dudley kept eyeing him until it began to annoy the other who turned upon him searchingly. But memory did not help and he sank back and after Gen. Dudley had eyed him again to his annoyance he remarked "Quit playing John B" who rejoined "Why bless my heart" if it isn't you, Dad." "Do you remember where we last met?" "You bet on that log near where we got those good things to eat down near Greenmount in Pa." Col. John B. Callis then detailed how he had been shot in the abdomen and taken to the O'Neal home in Gettysburg and it was many weeks before he left Gettysburg.

Gen. Dudley tells another most interesting incident of this wound Col. John B. Callis received at the Battle of Gettysburg. Years later President Garfield was shot by Giteau in the Washington depot. Col. Dudley was then Commissioner of Pensions and was present shortly after the President was carried to the White House. Seeing the President's wound he remarked to the surgeon that he knew a soldier who was very much alive who if he was not mistaken had been wounded in exactly the same way. Callis was telegraphed to, the history of his wound obtained and it was practically identical, and the medical history of the story of the wound of Callis at Gettysburg was studied to aid in the treatment of General Garfield's wound.

WHEN BABY LEARNED TO WALK.

Father Wanted to Start Him at Once on Career of Usefulness.

"Children seem to be considered a nuisance among the rich nowadays," remarked a well known business man who has a large family, "and to the poor they are a luxury, so between the two extremes it is a little surprising that the infant population keeps up to its record. In the olden days it was different. Every man and every woman believed it a duty to their God and to their country to raise a large family, and they fulfilled the obligation with a good grace. But times have changed. The moneyed man of to-day has no time for children. He has his business to look after and his rents to collect, while his wife is continually on the go with social engagements and appointments with her modiste. So the stork is left to shiver in the cold. But the poor man is sometimes as guilty as the rich in this matter. He has a family of children, but he has no time for them. I heard this illustrated by a little story the other day. A working man who lives in one of the poorer districts of the city has seven children, the youngest of whom recently graduated from the creeping stage of its existence. The father was sitting in the kitchen when he heard the voice of one of his daughters who was in another room. "Papa," she said, "the baby can walk." "Can he?" Well, send him around the corner for a pint," replied the parent, and resumed his reading."—N. Y. Press.

Out of the Schoolroom.

A schoolboy was asked to give some information in regard to the Cary sisters, the once famous New England poets, and he said of them: "The Cary sisters were two poets who lived in Massachusetts most of the time. They went to New York where they made many fast friends. Their fastest friend was John G. Whittier." At the time of the Longfellow centennial, when the school children were writing so much about him, one boy wrote: "Longfellow's poems were mostly of his own composure, but he wrote 'Tells of a Wayside Inn' where others did the talking. He was the poet laureate of our country and was a crack shot when it came to real poetry."—Lippincott's.

Spectacles for Cows.

A Russian firm which manufactures optical goods has just completed an order for 40,000 pairs of glasses to be worn by cows. These spectacles are necessary because the steppes, the great Russian prairies, are covered with snow for six months in the year, but during part of the time delicate fresh grass tips protrude from the white and dazzling mantle. The cows then are turned out to feed on the new grass, but if their eyes are unprotected from the dazzle of sunshine on the snow it gives them snow blindness. Hundreds have died from this cause; but a rude, cheap kind of spectacles, made of leather and smoked glass, was invented, and since has been used with great success.

What's Geography Good For?

This is from the philosophy of Mrs. Louisa Schmitt, who berated a teacher for not promoting her daughter because the latter was deficient in geography. "Teacher, you don't know it all, I guess," said the irate Mrs. Schmitt. "I wish it that my daughter gets through school so she gets a man. Never mind about the geography; just promote her without it. Why, my other daughter, she didn't know geography and she got a man. And you know all about geography and you ain't got any man at all. What is this geography good for? See that my daughter gets through school."

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliancy vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments. For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments. Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional. Both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical anesthetic and suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, easing nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambivalence, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

It is not without reason that dwellers in milder climates look forward with a thrill to some time spending a winter in Canada and sharing the picturesque sports which, inherited from the Indian, the Scot or the Scandinavian, have been cast in their present form by the high vigor and spirit of the Canadian people. Thus says a writer in the January number of the "New Idea Woman's Magazine" in discussing those winter pastimes which must appeal to all lovers of out-

MARK TWAIN FINISHED HIS STORY OF A VISIT TO HEAVEN

China is Fighting the Opium

Habit While America is Going Dry.

Mark Twain in January "Harper's Magazine" has finished "Capt. Stormfield's Visit to Heaven," and has certainly given an intensely interesting conception of the Abode of Bliss and coupled with that wonderful gift of humor makes the picture irresistible and must be read to be appreciated.

China's Efforts to Suppress Opium

The plan outlined in the edicts prohibiting opium is clear, direct, forcible. It was evidently meant to be effective. It provides (first) that the governors of the provinces shall ascertain, through the local authorities, the exact number of acres under poppy cultivation. The area of the land used for this purpose shall then be cut down by one fourth part each year, so that at the end of nine years there will be no more land used for such purposes, and the land thus disused. I am quoting here from the Chinaman who translated the Regulations for me—"shall never be used for the said purpose again. Should the owners of such lands disobey the decree, their lands shall be confiscated. Local officials who make special efforts and be able to stop the cultivation of poppy before the said time, they shall be rewarded with promotions."

The plan provides (second) that "all smokers, irrespective of class or sex, must go to the nearest authorities to get certificates, in which they are to write their names, addresses, profession, ages, and the amount of opium smoked each day." Latitude is allowed smokers over sixty years of age, but those under sixty "must get cured before arriving at sixty years of age. Persons who smoke or buy opium without certificates will be punished. No new smokers will be allowed from the date of prohibition. The amount of opium supplied to each smoker must decrease by one-third each year, so that within a few years there will be no opium smoked at all." Officials who overstep the law are to be deprived of their rank. In the case of common people, "their names will be posted up thorough fares, and will be deprived of privileges in all public gatherings."—Samuel Merwin in "Success Magazine."

Squaring Things With China.

For many years the Chinese have rightly considered the United States their best friend among the great powers. The American Government has never attempted any territorial grabbing, it has prohibited the carriage of opium to Chinese ports in American ships, it has stood for the preservation of the integrity of the Chinese Empire and for the open door policy, and has not only been fair but most generous in regard to her share of the Boxer indemnity exacted from China by the powers. I believe the Chinese government and the Chinese people both appreciate and are grateful for the friendship always shown by the United States Government, and that this feeling is still dominant in spite of the resentment which naturally followed the harsh measures of a few years ago which subjected all classes of Chinese entering the States to very humiliating formalities on landing. Now that all nations are competing so keenly for a share in the Chinese trade, the policy of the United States should be a conciliatory one, if for no other reason than commercial expediency. Our geographical position and nearness to China should give us a great advantage over the more distant European nations in competing for the China trade, but we must be prepared to deal with the Chinese in as liberal a manner as other nations.—From "Modern China—America's Share in Her Awakening," by Francis Augustus Carl, in "The Circle" for January.

Jack London Among the Lepers.

On his way around the world for the "Woman's Home Companion" Jack London visited the lepers of Molokai, on the island of Hawaii.

"Leprosy is not so contagious as is imagined," writes Mr. London in the January "Woman's Home Companion." "I went for a week's visit to the settlement, and I took my wife along—all of which would not have happened had we had any apprehension of contracting the disease. Nor did we wear long, gauntleted gloves and keep apart from the lepers. On the contrary, we mingled freely with them, and before we left knew scores of them by sight and name. The precautions of simple cleanliness seem to be all that is necessary. On returning to their own houses, after having been among and handling lepers, the non-lepers, such as the physicians and superintendent, merely wash their faces and hands with mildly antiseptic soap and change their coats."

Another college president has raised himself on the side of those who believe that the world is getting better, no worse. President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, states his view on the subject without equivocation. He thinks the feeling is growing that men must be held strictly accountable for irregularities and over-reaching quite apart from the strict letter of the law. This is a period of advancement. You can see it, he says, by talking to the men you meet while traveling, especially in the West, and with the average American—the lawyers, the manufacturers, the shopkeepers and business men. Some of the men whose business methods are now being held up to public criticism believe that they came into their fortunes by fair means. "We were like other men," says President Butler, "we have set up a different and a higher code. The business tactics that were permitted then are looked upon as unethical to-day. We have advanced, and advancing, have changed our attitude toward life." President Butler goes on to declare that "we have set up a more exacting code of public life."

Possibly our announced standards are not so very much higher, but public opinion does not now easily permit departure from the standards. At any doors. Few people know to what extent tobogganing, snow-shoeing, hockey and even ice-boating are entered into by both men and women in these northern climates; and their social influence in bringing people together for a common pleasure and purpose is another attractive side for which other localities offer no substitutes. The photographs are excellent; they are full of action and life, and show various clubs on their runs and at their contests.

A School for American Citizenship

In these days of the uncovering of graft, when everybody is asking, "What can be done?" comes from the fastnesses of Pennsylvania a stirring story, which we quote from "One Man and His Town," in the January McClure's. Roseto was a collection of Italian shacks, and "Bangor said that Roseto ought to be wiped off the face of the map—for Bangor was coming to a sense of the seriousness of the situation. Fifty or sixty Italians scattered within her limits had been bad enough; two or three hundred, segregated in a ramshackle village a mile away, ready to break out at any time with an epidemic of typhoid or the long knife, where a menace to the health and the peace of the community. Those were the days when Bangor mothers used to warn unruly children by saying, 'If you don't mind, the Eysaltians'll get you and carry you off!'"

The Presbyterian Church sent out a missionary, who didn't last, and even the Catholic Church finally felt into the sheriff's hands. In this happy state came Father de Nisco, an Italian priest, a disciple of Abraham Lincoln. With his own hands the priest tidied up the rubbish heaps, and his people followed suit. "Eysaltian Town" has now become the flourishing town of Roseto. Father de Nisco is at once Captain of Industry and Labor Leader, Excise Commissioner, Board of Health, and Chief of Police. He has two classes a year in "American Citizenship." The account of his work is well worth perusal.

"The Twentieth Century is for the Engineer."

The twentieth century is for the engineer—whether it be he who harnesses the water-courses, who trains the electrical elements, or who transforms the latent energy of carbon into that which propels the ship afloat and the locomotive on land. Its outlook is of historic empires and ancient civilizations developing awakened ambitions under the impact and the guidance of the Western World. Something the Orient offered in the beginning: something more it will return to its present-day conquerors who bring it the greatest of all gifts, the gift of ideas in action. To-day Egypt, India, Asiatic Turkey are moved by common industrial impulses and linked by similarity of physical circumstances with the southwest region of the United States: the modern, the historic, and the prehistoric perspectives merge in Arizona and Mesopotamia.

From "The West in the Orient: Irrigation: An Old Force Newly Applied," by Charles M. Pepper, in the January Scribner.

World Getting Better.

Another college president has raised himself on the side of those who believe that the world is getting better, no worse. President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, states his view on the subject without equivocation. He thinks the feeling is growing that men must be held strictly accountable for irregularities and over-reaching quite apart from the strict letter of the law. This is a period of advancement. You can see it, he says, by talking to the men you meet while traveling, especially in the West, and with the average American—the lawyers, the manufacturers, the shopkeepers and business men. We have advanced, and advancing, have changed our attitude toward life." President Butler goes on to declare that "we have set up a more exacting code of public life."

Possibly our announced standards are not so very much higher, but public opinion does not now easily permit departure from the standards. At any rate, the doctrine that things are really getting better, notwithstanding all the exposure of scandals—that these refer to exceptions and are incidents of moral progress—is a very cheering and encouraging doctrine, and an excellent "working hypothesis."—Editorial in the January "Century."

GIFTED WITH STRANGE POWERS.

Lawyer Objected to "Conversation" Between Witness and Horse.

At a term of the circuit court in Ohio not long ago a "horse case" was on trial, and a well-known "horseman" was called as a witness. "Well, sir, you saw this horse?" asked counsel for the defendant. "Yes, sir, I—"

"What did you do?" "I just opened his mouth to find out how old he was; an' I says to him, I says, 'Old sport, I guess you're pretty good yet.'" At this juncture counsel for the opposing side entered a violent objection. "Stop!" he cried. "Your honor, I object to any conversation carried on between the witness and the horse when the plaintiff was not present!"—Harper's Weekly.

Miser's Peculiar Will.

William John Watson emigrated a half century ago from Portadown, County Armagh, Ireland, to Australia, where he made a fortune of over $10,000. A few years ago he returned to his native town and has since lived the life of a miser in a small three roomed house, where he was found dead several days ago. By his will he leaves the whole of his property to Portadown, for the purpose of providing healthy recreation for the people, but he bars football or race rowing. The will further provides that the urban council shall, out of the interest, have a dinner every five years, the expense not to exceed £1 per head. At each of these dinners the will is to be read publicly.

Interesting Use of Gas.

A very interesting use for producer gas is made in a factory in Jersey City, where tempering of metal to be made into curtain springs is successfully and economically done with its heat. Coke fires were formerly utilized for the purpose, but the temperature varied to such an extent that a great deal of the material was spoiled. With producer gas an absolutely constant temperature is secured and the work is done in a more cleanly manner, with no possibility of error as to the degree of heat. Consequently the waste heretofore encountered has been reduced to a minimum and the quality of the product is absolutely uniform.

A Diamond in the Dark.

It is said that some diamonds will shine by their own light when placed in a dark room. Prof. Crookes, of London, says that when diamonds are placed in a vacuum and exposed to a current of electricity, they shine with different colored lights. He has seen them emit bright blue, pale blue, apricot, red, yellowish-green, pale green and orange rays. One beautiful green diamond in his possession, when phosphorescing in a good vacuum, gave almost as much light as a candle. The light was pale green.

Too Much Tee.

He was a solicitor of more or less repute, and his Saturday afternoon's pursuit was golf and whisky and soda. On this particular Saturday, however, he had been detained in town. On reaching home he was met by his wife and little daughter. "No game to-day, my dear," he said to his wife, as he picked up his little girl and kissed her. Then his daughter smiled the air and said, "Well, dad, you do smell awfully of golf!"—The Sun.

She had been invited to join a ball-rooming party. How many are going up?" she asked. "Three," they told her. She looked disappointed. "What is wrong?" they asked her. "If there were four," she answered, "we could play bridge!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

RETIREDBUSINESSMAN FAVORS NEW THEORY

E. H. Lambert, of Everett, Massachusetts, Believes Stomach the Seat of Life.

One of the most interesting statements made recently concerning the much discussed Cooper theory, that has spread over the country during the past year, is made by E. H. Lambert, a retired business man, whose home is at 115 Francis Street, Everett, Mass.

Mr. Lambert has this to say in connection with Cooper and his medicines: "Some time ago I read an article about this man Cooper, in which he claimed that stomach trouble was directly responsible for most ill health. He went on to say that, although his medicine did nothing but got the stomach in sound condition, it would, in many cases, remove kidney and liver trouble and various other ailments. He argued from this that the stomach was the main cause of sickness, and stated that the success he has had with his medicines was due entirely to this fact.

"I am now fully convinced that this theory is correct, and believe Cooper has a really remarkable medicine, judging from my own experience. "I have been a sick man for five years. Three years ago I was told by a physician that I had Bright's disease of the kidneys. I have treated constantly for this trouble since, without results. After reading the article I have mentioned, I purchased some of this man Cooper's medicine. I have been astounded by what it has done for me. I was relieved to some extent within 24 hours. Today my health is better than for five years, and so far as I can tell, my kidney trouble has disappeared.

"My wife, who had stomach trouble for some time, tried the preparation after noting its action in my case, and her improvement is fully as marked as mine. She now eats heartily three times a day without any distress whatsoever. Her nervousness has also left her. I certainly believe this man's success is fully justified, as he undoubtedly has a wonderful medicine."

We will gladly describe the remarkable record made by the Cooper medicines to all who wish to know of them. —The People's Drug Store.

O. I. A. Keep Funds.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania handed down an opinion last week in a case before them between the Junior Order of United American Mechanics and the Order of Independent Americans. Following the division in the State organization the Duquesne Council adhered to the O. of I. A. and retained a fund of $2,037 collected for funeral and sick benefits for members of that lodge and this fund the Jr. O. U. A. M. sought to obtain. The decision was in favor of the O. of I. A. holding that the sick and funeral benefits belonged to the Council for use and benefit of the contributors and that the Supreme body could not confiscate property owned by the local Council. This decision will be of interest to a number of our people who were in the position of the Duquesne Council, adhering to the O. of I. A. instead of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

REAL CAUSE OF THE SMASHUP.

Railroad Sign to Blame for Accident It Was Intended to Avert.

The old darky was suing the railroad company for damages. The man contended that, not being warned by whistle or engine bell, he had started to drive his rig across the company's track when a shunted box car of said company crashed into his outfit, causing the death of the horse, loss of the wagon and minor injuries to himself. After the prosecution had closed its side of the case, the company's lawyer called the old darky to the stand and went to him "Mr. Lamson," he began, "your rig was struck by the box car in full daylight, was it not?" "I tink dar was some clouds ovahead, suh," answered the caviling witness. "Never mind the clouds! And only a few days before this accident the railroad company had put a new sign at that crossing?" "Dar was a sign dar, yaas, suh!" "And didn't that sign say 'Stop! Look! Listen?'" "Now, dar am de whole accusation nb de trouble!" declared the darky, with animation. "If dat stop sign hadn't caught dis chill's eye jes' 'a Ah war squar' on dat track, dar wouldn't 'a been no smashup!"—Bohemian.

It is very important and in fact it is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at the first signs of trouble—which are belching of gas, nausea, sour stomach, headache, irritability and nervousness. These are warnings that the stomach has been mistreated: it is doing too much work and it is demanding help from you. Take something once in a while: especially after meals: something like KODOL For Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It will enable your stomach to do its work properly. Sold by Peoples Drug Store.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. POWER OF THE ROTHSCHILDS.

Accumulated Wealth Soon to Make Influence of House Enormous.

It has been calculated that at the present rate of accumulation the Rothschilds will own by the middle of the present century some £2,000,000,000 sterling, or nearly enough to pay off the national debt three times over, says a writer in the Grand Magazine, of London, England. The imagination is staggered and fails to realize the power which is represented by such figures. It could finance, or it could stop, a war; it could delay the industrial development of a country for a generation; or it could, on the other hand, enable a country which it favored to beat all its industrial rivals. A power like this must have its fingers on all the arteries through which flows the life-blood of commerce, the ebb and flow of which it can regulate uncontrolled.

For Happiness in Marriage.
I have spoken of the only true and right motive for marriage, and venture my opinion that marriage should not be too eagerly sought by either sex, but rather waited for until the certainty has come that one loves worthily and well. I mean, that for a man to say to himself, in cold blood, that it is time he should marry, and, for that reason, to look about for a wife—instead of being aware that he loves and therefore desires to marry the one beloved woman—is, to my thinking, as unwise and in almost as poor taste as for a girl to discover that it is time she was settled in life and, in consequence, set about trying to attract a husband. In neither case is happiness in marriage likely to be the result of such a quest.—Louise Chandler Moulton.
